Month | 2022

How to start a home-based business workshop is dedicated to help those thinking of starting their own home-based business or who have recently set one up.

Our dedicated team of Small Business Advisers will explain the fundamentals of starting a new business. You will work through a Business Start-Up Checklist, identify where you are up to and discover what else you need to do before successfully starting your new venture. You can then develop your action plan to make it all happen.

You will learn:

- The fundamentals of starting a new business
- What you need to work on to successfully get your business started

At the completion of the session you will leave with:

- A Business Start-Up Checklist
- Ongoing support from your local Small Business Adviser
- An action plan to start your business

A one-to-one follow up meeting is available to assist you further and embed the ideas/principles of the session.

Grants writing workshops with CALD communities - Learn how to write proposals that help you to secure grant funding for your not-for-profit organisation or small business.

If you're part of a not-for-profit organisation or run a small business, grants can be a great funding source and help you to continue carrying out and expanding the important work you do. The challenge is standing out when you're up against many others competing after the same pool of funds.

Presented by Kerrie Woodrow from Multicultural Australia, in conjunction with Queensland Small Business Month (QSBM), this Grant Writing workshop will help you learn about the different types of grants available to you and how to approach and write proposals so you're setting yourself apart as a deserving recipient.

What you will learn at this workshop:

- Grants in Australia and how to find out who will fund what?
- How to identify community needs and whether funding is needed
- How to develop your projects' aim and objectives
- How to develop a project plan and budget
- How to respond to key questions of the application form
